Explanation of Local Expenditures: (Revised) Under the bill, school transportation expenditures could be reduced given that special purpose buses are probably cheaper to operate than a regular bus. Schools would be able to use special purpose buses for regular transportation of students from one school to another school. The bill would not allow use of special purpose buses for regular transportation of students between their residence and school.

Under current law, special purpose buses may be used to transport students enrolled in special programs for the habilitation of developmentally disabled or physically disabled students. The bill would allow use of these buses to transport special program students between their residence and school.
