Summary of Legislation: This bill requires local unit public employers that provide group health insurance for active public safety employees to also provide group health insurance to: (1) full-time firefighters who retired or became disabled after March 1, 1985, and before July 1, 1989; and (2) surviving spouses and dependents of full-time firefighters who died after March 1, 1985, and before July 1, 1989, while in active service or after retirement.

Effective Date: Upon passage.

Explanation of State Revenues:

Explanation of Local Expenditures: This bill requires a local unit public employer who provides group health insurance to its active public safety employees must also provide group health insurance to its full-time firefighters (who retired or began receiving disability benefits between March 1985 and July 1989) or to surviving spouses and dependents of its full-time firefighters (who died between March 1985 and July 1989). The former employee or spouse would be required to pay an amount equal to the total of the employer's and the employee's premiums for the insurance that is paid by active employees. However, the employer may choose to pay any part of the total premium for employees or spouses that did not involve a line-of-duty death.

The number of local full-time firefighters statewide who retired, became disabled, or died between March 1985 and July 1989 is not immediately known. The statewide number is probably small, and the aggregate statewide impact would also likely be small. However, the cost impact would vary by local unit, and the impact on any particular local unit, especially smaller units, could be significant.

Background Information: A local unit public employer may be a city, town, county, township, public library, or school corporation. Although the retired or disabled full-time firefighter or the spouse and dependents of a deceased full-time firefighter may be required to pay the entire premium for the health insurance (both employer and employee shares), adverse selection could be a significant factor in the costs faced by the local unit. An individual choosing to participate in the group health insurance program may have health costs higher than the average insured member, which could either impact premiums for local units purchasing group health insurance or could impact the costs faced by local units that self-insure for their employee health benefits.
