 FEDERAL

IMPACT: No Fiscal Impact

Summary of Legislation: The bill repeals the definition of "state developmental center", and removes references to state developmental centers and the Fort Wayne State Developmental Center, which no longer exist. The bill changes references from "managed care providers" to "community mental health centers" in statutes concerning mental health home and community-based services. The bill removes a provision specifying an addictions treatment provider as the gatekeeper for an individual entering into an addiction program in a state institution.

Effective Date: July 1, 2013.

Explanation of State Expenditures: The provisions of the bill would change references with respect to "community mental health centers" to conform with existing statutes. The removal of references to "state development centers" and the Fort Wayne Development Center, specifically, reflects the past closing of those centers. Therefore, the bill should not have an impact to state expenditures.
